Marshall Awarded Papineau Cup At Mock Parliament

Winner Receives Trophy In Memory Of Graduate

FOUR COMPETE

Debate On Question Of Doom Of American Civilization

Winning the Talbot Papineau Cup, emblematic of debating skill in the University, Arthur Marshall of Arts '33 was victorious at the Mock Parliament held last night in the Union Ballroom. His opponents were Nathan Levy, Melbourne Doig, and H. E. Parsons while the debate was judged by Brooke Claxton, lecturer in law of insurance, Jean St. Germain, B.A., B.C.L., and John Blond M.A., while the Speaker was H. Carl. Goldenberg.

Col. Bovey, in a short speech outlined the purport of the competition and said it was in memory of Talbot Papineau, Rhodes Scholar and graduate in Arts and Law, who was killed at Paschendaele. The cup was donated by Mrs. Reford, a friend of the family.

Starts Debate

Harold Lande, while one of the candidates was allowed to remain in the room, introduced the subject, "Resolved that the present day American civilization is doomed." He pointed out that all the principles of civilization which have been made in the past have been thrown over by the Americans. Starvation is in the midst of plenty and the home has turned into nothing but a mailing address.

Arthur Marshall, the first speaker, taking the negative side, showed that present day conditions are not peculiar to America alone. It is agreed that when a nation ceases to create it is doomed. America, as may be seen from the works achieved and going on now, has not stopped creating. Their inventiveness is still strong.

Many Evil Forces

The second speaker, Nathan Levy, pointed out that a few years ago in the United States one of their citizens was honoured greatly and recently his son was kidnapped and cannot be found. The booze problem is rampant. The gangland forces are practically ruling the country. The cities and banks are insolvent. The recognized

French School To Give Scholarships

Two Students From Outside Province To Get Aid

Announcement was made by the French Department yesterday of two scholarships open to a first year man and woman from another province for the McGill French Summer School. The dates of the school for this year were announced at the same time to be June 27th to July 30th, with the Royal Victoria College as headquarters.

"Last year, in spite of the depression, 220 students attended the school, only six of whom were McGill students," Professor du Roure told the Daily reporter. "We hope to see a good many more take advantage this year of the facilities offered by the School, which is well-known all over the continent."

A scholarship for free attendance, including board, room, and tuition, at the French Summer School is offered to a first year man student intending to take an honour course in French, coming from a province other than Quebec, for greatest progress made in French during the first year. A similar scholarship is offered a woman student complying with the same conditions.

The School, which is directed by Professor du Roure, will have an instructing staff of 26, and will offer three courses of varying degrees of difficulty.

Daily Ceases Publication

Today's is the last issue of the Daily for the current academic year, with the exception of the Convocation issue which will appear about the middle of April.

Class Historians

Class Historians of all faculties are advised to have their histories ready for publication in the convocation issue of the Daily before April 16th. They may be sent to the Union, care of the Editor.

E.C.U. At Annual Meeting Elected Year's Executive

NEW officers for the year were elected at the annual meeting of the Evangelical Christian Union in the Music Room of the Union yesterday afternoon. The retiring president Winston Billingsley outlined the work done in the past session, mentioning the prayer meetings, bible classes, which had been conducted, and told of the Conference held in Toronto.

Officers elected were, W. Stanford Reid of Arts '34, President; and Vice-president, Rita de Pierro, of Arts '35. The new secretary was Raymond Stote, Arts '35; and the Advisor, Arnold Johnson, Arts '35.

The meeting concluded with a prayer.

Spanish Has Both Music And Power

Unlocks Treasure Of Art And Literature Claims A. Peers

HISTORY "THRILLING"

Now Reaching Turning-point — Country May Rise To Heights Of Old

"The Spanish language is spoken not merely by 23,000,000 people in Spain, but by 100,000,000 people in all parts of the world," stated Professor Allison Peers emphasizing one of the advantages to be gained by the study of the Spanish language. Professor Peers of Liverpool University, eminent author and Spanish scholar, traced the whole course of Spanish art and civilization in his lecture, Tuesday afternoon at Moyse Hall, on "The Appeal of Spanish Culture."

The study of the Spanish language is not only useful in the business world, but is also of value for disciplinary purposes and as a key to unlock the great treasures that are hidden in the Spanish literature and culture. The speaker appealed for a more extensive teaching of Spanish in the schools and colleges.

Language Melodious

The attraction which the study of Spanish holds is accounted for by the fact that "On the one hand the language is melodious, and on the other hand, it has strength." Because of the many synonyms, resulting from foreign invasions, the language is difficult to master, although comparatively easy for the beginner.

Like that of other countries, Spanish literature may be traced through different periods. The early epic, rich ballad collection the ages of fiction and lyric all lead up to Cervantes and the Golden Age, where "we have not only genius but also abundance." This is followed by a period of many

Nine Nominations For Arts Offices

Undergrad Society Executive To Be Chosen Next Week

Three nominations for president, and two for each of vice-president, secretary, and treasurer of the Arts Undergraduate Society, testify to the fact that student apathy has received a jolt since the eight acclamations for major student offices.

John G. Black, Robert M. Calter, and Ross Wilson are standing for the presidency, R. R. Malcolm Ransom, and John Harold Snelgrove have been nominated for vice-president. The secretarial position is between Arnold L. Johnson and Paul Kircher, while the treasurer will be either W. Dodds Hilliard or George R. W. Owen.

The elections are to be held next Wednesday, March 30, and not Easter Monday as a recent advertisement had it.

All men undergraduates of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences are members of the Arts Undergraduate Society and have the right to vote next week in these elections. The executive hopes that as much interest will be taken in the actual elections as in the nominations.

Winter Outing Club

One of the most successful seasons in the W.O.C's history will come to an end this afternoon at five o'clock, in the Grill room of the Union. Reports will be presented and officers will be elected. As many members are graduating this year, the club will largely depend upon the younger members, and a full turnout is requested.

Budding Officers Plan Annual Dance For Next Friday

AS a final touch to a very active season, the McGill Contingent of the C.O.T.C. have completed plans for their annual dance, to be held Friday April first in the Windsor Hotel. As will be noticed, the date is All Fools' Day, the term April Fool, however, may only be applied to those who do not attend.

Although the dance is primarily for members of the corps, a limited number of tickets will be sold to outsiders, who may apply for same at the Staff Headquarters on University Street.

Honour Goethe's Memory At Dinner

Teutonia Club Ho. 100th Anniversary Of Poet's Death

SPEECHES BILINGUAL

Toasts And Replies Made In German And English At Option Of Speakers

The one-hundredth anniversary of the great poet and thinker, Goethe, was commemorated at a banquet held last night at the Teutonia Club by the Montreal Branch of the Goethe Society. Dr. H. Walter, Head of the Department of Germanic languages was in the chair. Among other prominent personages present were: Sir Arthur Currie, Dean Ira McKay, Professor W. D. Woodhead, Professor W. L. Graff, German Consul-General Kempf and Mrs. Kempf, President of the Teutonia Club Doerken, Dean Adams of the Faculty of Engineering, Mr. Boehmer, and Mr. Van Kloosters.

The dinner began shortly after 7:30. At the conclusion of the hors d'ouvre Dr. Walter delivered the "Begruessungsrede", a brief introduction sparkling with wit. He greeted the company in the name of the Goethe Society. Mr. Kempf then replied to the toast on behalf of the German people.

Talks in German and English

After the entree had been cleared from the table, Professor Woodhead, head of the Classics Department at McGill, proposed the toast of the Goethe Society. Professor Woodhead spoke in English. The toast was replied to by Professor Graff of the Department of Germanic Languages.

The next feature of the program was a short epigrammatic talk by Mr. Boehmer. Mr. Boehmer spoke in German. His subject was " Persoenliche Eindruecke einer Reise im Goethejahre." Mr. Boehmer drew some very vivid pictures of the Weimar and Frankfurt districts, among other favorite haunts of the Great Dramatist. Particularly instructive was his account of the stage representation of Faust.

Emphasize Internationalism

It was the object of the sponsors of the Goethe program last night to emphasize the internationalism of Goethe, and not to introduce him as an essentially German genius. Hence, three languages were spoken throughout the evening. Professor Du Roure later gave a short talk in French. Mr. Schafhausen, Chancel-

Last Parade Held

C.O.T.C. Inspected By Brig-Gen. Gibson At Armoury

Ending the parades for the season, the McGill Contingent of the C.O.T.C. held its last parade last night conducted by Brigadier-General W. W. P. Gibson, the corps being drawn up under Col. E. B. Q. Buchanan, O.C. He was accompanied by Col. R. R. Thompson and Col. A. A. McKergow. The guests included Lord and Lady Bessborough and Sir Arthur Currie.

After the inspection and parade, a long-service medal was presented to Major Pennell, who has been 20 years in the unit. Col. Buchanan then thanked all those present for the fine showing they have made. The C.O.T.C. dance will be held on April 1st in the Windsor Hotel. It is under the Patronage of Col. Buchanan and of Sir Arthur Currie. Although tickets will be sold to the public, it is mainly a unit function and is primarily intended for members of the corps. It has not yet been decided whether the band will play at the dance.

Nation Of Future Will Have Central Board Of Control

Present Democracy Incompetent, Conclusion Reached At Economics Club

TWO PAPERS READ

Ken Baker And Sam Goodman Discuss Democracy And Public Finance

"An intricate motor-car, travelling at 250 mile per hour, may be smashed by a trifling impediment; similarly our complex economic system may be thrown out of equilibrium by a very small disturbance — a scientific controlling agency will therefore be essential in the future state". So spoke Sam Goodman, who, with Ken Baker, last night addressed the Political Economy Club.

Both speakers discussed the faults of modern democracies in handling the problem of public finance, and suggested different remedies. A live discussion followed the addresses. It was generally agreed, however, that some form of central economic control is necessary. Election of next year's officers took place after the speeches.

State Functions Increase

Baker was the first speaker. He demonstrated that public expenditure had increased tremendously since the War, until now some states are forced to levy as much as 10% of the national income in taxation. Social legislation accounted for much of this. The growing importance of the state as an entrepreur was also emphasized.

Goodman examined the various forms of taxation from the point of view of the equalization of wealth. He showed that in this regard, most governments, and especially that of the United States had almost entirely failed. Turning to what he considered a more important function of the state, namely the eradication of fear of unemployment, he stated that the state should provide a job for every man.

Central Board Needed

The required stability, it was explained, could only come about by having our whole economic system managed by a central board of control, composed of experts. The word "democracy" must be re-defined; let it be for the people, but not by the people, because they are not qualified.

The president-elect for next year is Allison Walsh. H. H. Tees was chosen vice-president. William Hasler receives the secretaryship while M. J. Boxer becomes treasurer. The latter office was filled by acclamation.

Cercle And Societe Hold Joint Meeting

Short Plays And Dancing Compose Entertainment

Two French plays were presented by the men and women of Arts '34 at a joint meeting held in the R.V.C. on Tuesday night. The Cercle Francais and the Societe Francaise gathered to entertain the fair crowd which listened with pleasure to Jules Moineaux's "Les deux sourds" and to Georges Courteline's "Le Commissaire est bon enfant." The former play was acted by the girls and the latter by the men of the sophomore class in Arts.

The plays were followed by informal dancing and refreshments were served to the audience. The meeting ended at eleven o'clock after it had been announced that a meeting will be held next week, in order to elect an executive for the coming year. An amalgamation of the two clubs may be completed next fall but nothing official has as yet been announced.

To Award Prizes

Delta Sigma Society Holds Last Meeting Of Session

This afternoon will mark the close of the Delta Sigma Society's activities for this year. At four o'clock the interclass public speaking contest will be held and representatives from each year will deliver five minute speeches on any subject they feel inspired to deal with. A cup and individual prizes will be offered to the winning teams. Helen Hendrey, Alice Johanssen, Juanita deShield, Alice Vercoe, are among the contestants.

Officers will also be elected for next year. The Freshie Debating Cup will be presented to Juanita deShield and Gertrude Allen, who formed this year's winning team. The judges' names have not as yet been announced but it is understood that they will be graduates who have been prominent debaters in the Delta Sigma Society during previous year.

Head Daily Next Year

Reynolds Is New S.C.A. President

New Cabinet Formed Of Both Men And Women

PRESENT REPORTS

Annual Meeting Addressed By Rev. Lawrence Clare Last Night

"The doctrine of the Kingdom of God is rynamite to some of the most treasured institutions of men, and the Church has ignored it," declared the Reverend Lawrence Clare last night, addressing the annual meeting of the S.C.A. in Strathcona Hall. Speaking on "The Significance of Jesus," Mr. Clare pointed out that the Jesus of the gospels is not the "Gentle Jesus meek and mild" of religious jargon, but a man of intellectual power and rapidity unique in history.

The meeting was the occasion of annual reports, notice of motion to amend the constitution, and election of officers. Lloyd Reynolds, elected president, took the chair from Hugh Trimingham, who opened the meeting, and the new secretary, Eleanor Reid, also took over her duties at once. The other names on the new cabinet, which is composed of both men and women, are Ruth Richan, R. Malcolm Ransom, Bill Braisted, C. T. Howell, Martha Greene, Alma Howard, Janet Dobson, Hugh L. Trimingham, Alex Gordon.

Reports Presented.

The annual reports of Marjorie Wass, President of the S.C.A. of R.V.C., Janet Dobson, Treasurer of the same, Hugh L. Trimingham, President of the S.C.A. of McGill, J. S. Smit, Treasurer, and C. M. Stuart, General Secretary, gave evidence of a year of varied and productive activity, but showed the finances of the Association to be in need of drastic salutary measures to rescue them from their present condition.

C. M. Stuart's report gave a studied evaluation of the year's activity, showing that the Association's efforts and interests had been detracted somewhat from the study and worship program on which the S.C.M. tries to lay most emphasis, by activities well worthy of their attention, but less directly in the line of their aims, such as the Student Disarmament Petition, the Student Volunteer Movement Convention, and the Student Unemployment Relief project.

Committees Projected.

To remedy the financial situation, the formation of a Graduates' Co-operating Committee which will take a good deal of the burden of raising funds off the students' shoulders is proposed and that of a Finance Committee of senior members, graduates, and students to supervise the

Alumnae Entertain

Twenty-six Tables Of Bridge Held At R.V.C.

Last night witnessed yet another indication of the impending wind up of McGill's social activities. About 100 co-eds were entertained at a gala bridge given by the Alumnae Society for the graduating class of R.V.C. The Alumnae Society set a precedent this year by giving a bridge instead of the usual tea later on in the term.

Mrs. Vaughan and Miss Slack received, and the conveners of the entertainment were Miss Slack and Miss Spier, of the Alumnae Committee on Undergraduate Interests. A special feature of the evening was Miss C. I. Mackenzie's talk on the Canadian and International Federation of University Women with which the Alumnae Society is affiliated. Refreshments were served in the Common Room.

McGill To Debate With Pennsylvania

Radio To Be Used In International Fixture

FIRST OF KIND

Band Will Play And Give Yells Of Both Colleges On Saturday

Entering upon a new line of endeavour, the McGill Debating Union is being represented by Carl Goldenberg and Fred Stone in the first intercollegiate radio debate ever to be held between American and Canadian Colleges. They are opposing speakers from the University of Pennsylvania over a nation wide hook-up of sixty stations of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

The McGill speakers will do their part of the programme from the studios of station CKAC in Montreal. There also the McGill band will perform in the intervals, rendering Pennsylvania and McGill songs and yells, As is customary in these affairs, fan mail is expected to pour into the station.

Comments at End.

The subject of this international argument is, "Resolved that the Foreign Policy of the United States is Retarding Disarmament." H. V. Kaltenburn will act as chairman from New York, and though no decision will be made there will be comments on the merits of the debate offered at the end.

Carl Goldenberg, the present President of the Debating Union is one of the most tried of the debaters from McGill and in company with Fred Stone has appeared on the platform in intercollegiate debates many times before. Pennsylvania will be represented by Bernard Gekoski and Gilbert Oswald.

First of Kind

The first debate of this kind was held recently when an Oxford-Cambridge team opposed Harvard-Yale in a trans-Atlantic radio debate.

The debate is scheduled to commence at four on Saturday and will continue until five.

Society Concludes Year's Activities

Debating Union Hears Report And Elects Officers

Officers were elected and reports presented at the final gathering for the year of the Debating Union Society Tuesday afternoon. Arthur Marshall was named secretary while R. Wilson Becket is to fill the post of Junior Treasurer. Four members were appointed to the standing committee for next season: Max Ford, Nat Levy, Harold Lande, and Orley Mason. Other officers were elected by ballot some time ago.

Carl Goldenberg, retiring president of the Society, gave an outline of the year's activities in which he concluded that the Debating Union had enjoyed one of its most successful years in that there have been more debates held and programs have been more interesting than in the past. Large crowds, he added, have been attracted to the meetings which indicate their popularity.

Tribute was paid to the "Daily" for its co-operation and to Goldenberg for his efforts on behalf of the Society during the year just concluded.

House Of Commons Club

"Sports, ancient modern" has been announced as the topic of two papers to be read at the next and last meeting of the House of Commons Club. The speakers will be Dorothy Ross and Gwen Roberts and the meeting will be held at the home of Dr. Huskins, Apt. 85, 3525, Durocher Street.

Two Quartets To Perform In April

Chamber Groups To Appear In Moyse Hall

Two string quartets, well known to the campus will visit Moyse Hall during the month of April. On the 14th of the month, the McGill Conservatorium String Quartet will present a program of chamber music, while on the 24th, two months after its previous concert in the same hall the London String Quartet will return for a farewell appearance with a number of selections that will include the Cesar Franck Quintet, Mr. Douglas Clarke, dean of the Faculty of Music playing the piano.

The Conservatorium chamber group has been in existence for a number of years, but its public appearances have been rare, numbering not more than half a dozen a year. It is always well received, however, both by its audiences, and by the press, and is looked forward to by many in the city.

Now on a tour of the continent, the London String Quartet is ranked among the first in the musical field, and, to quote the European press, is composed of musicians each of whom is a master of his instrument, playing with an ease and virtuosity unsurpassed, in combination, by any others. When here in February, this quartet played the Malipiero Quartet in two parts for the first time in Canada.

Lewis To Speak At Labour Club

An address from the president, Dave Lewis, is the attraction promised by the Labour Club for its last meeting of the year next Wednesday night at 8.15 in Strathcona Hall Lewis' subject is as yet unannounced, but he promises it to be of unique interest to the members of such an organization as the Labour Club. Election of officers for the next session will also take place.

The Examination System

THE growth of knowledge has done a great deal of good for the world in general but its effect on the average student has been far from happy. For, as time goes on, the standard of necessary elementary knowledge has an unfortunate knack of rising steadily; in consequence the poor student is required to accumulate yearly a larger store of very detailed and altogether irrelevant facts for the sole purpose of proving to his superiors that he has been learning as much as is postulated by the exigencies of a course, which may require those facts as an important integral part of the course, though they are objectively of minor significance when the student has ceased to specialize in that particular direction.

It is easy to see the reason underlying such a procedure, which is universally recognized as inadequate, but is still adopted as the only known way of rating the intelligence of the individual student and the amount he has learnt during the detailed course. In point of fact, few will deny that the dreaded Exam is more often than not a test not of the learners' ability in a broad way but of his ability to tabulate the results of a hurried and altogether frenzied revision of the matter he has been studying for some considerable time; a test of his power of concentration under the strained and artificial atmosphere of the Exam room, aided by an irrational and alarming percentage of luck.

The facts above are well-known to large numbers of enlightened and capable authorities, yet one perceives no modification of an intolerable system as the result of this enlightenment.

Rather than a reduction of the numbers of Examinations which have from time immemorial darkened the outlook and blighted the peace of mind of our youth, these Exams are today augmented by the further barbarities of advanced tests, and hocus-pocus of every kind which make even those of maturer age recoil from scholastic attainment with a shudder.

Until there arises a new liberator of youth, a second Socrates, the present days of darkness must continue, but let us not wallow; let us not take the follies of this Academic second-best too seriously; for it is an artificial substitute, and will no doubt pass with Nineveh and Tyre. And to those, who are even now in the first throes of the growing terror, may it be said that the failures of today will in later years seem of small account and a shabby Third will outstrip the glories of many a First, culled from the shamefaced tomes that clutter up the libraries of the world.

Swan Songs

IN this age of scientific investigation, it comes as no surprise to learn that some "scientist" has succeeded in making a recording of the sounds made by a dying swan. It seems, however, that such an investigation is almost sacrilege, as the ends served are almost nil, while the legend of the swan-song is too beautiful to bring down to the level of listening to the actual sounds on one's phonograph.

What scientific end would it serve if some pseudo-scientist, seeing the words "swan-song" used as above, were to produce his record of it, proving it to be merely a death-rattle. The search for truth is indeed a laudable search, but we must not confuse it with the mere pedantry which must have its meaning literal at all costs.

Just recently a millionaire ended his life, giving as reason, "My work is ended, why wait?" Can this be compared with the death which the swan is supposed to die, doing as it dies what it was unable to do all its life, and doing it surpassingly well.

The event comes appropriately at this time of the year, as many prepare to say good-bye to their university careers. Graduation is the end of an important part of a person's life, and it should not be allowed to fade away as any ordinary term.

Many have done little or nothing that is really noteworthy during the past year, or even during their whole four years. Instead of letting things end as they have begun, why not do something, whatever it may be, curricular or extra-curricular, better than you have ever done it before. Do something so that in after years you will be able to look back upon your last days at McGill, seeing something done well enough to obliterate all thoughts of mediocre work before and even after.

The BOOKSHELF

The Simian Department Of The Bloomsbury Zoo

"THE APES OF GOD" by Wyndham Lewis. Robert M. McBride & Company, New York. 625 pp. $3.00.

Mr. Wyndham Lewis' interest in the finer points of London fauna dates back to the "Owl"; in its time a bird of surprizing plumage. In the present weighty treatise on an obscure species of antropoids peculiar to the environs of the Quartier Latin, Soho and other areas of lush vegetation, Mr Lewis lines up in parade before us the representative simians describing in minute and often tedious detail their anatomy, physiology habitat and social behaviour.

At this stage we must stop to give the author's definition of an Ape of God. "They (the apes) are the unpaying guests of the house of art: the crowd of thriving valets who adopt the livery of this noble but now decayed establishment, pour se donner un air — to mock, in their absence its masters." He has restricted himself to the apes found in London because of his thorough and personal knowledge of the "monied middleclass descendants of victorian literary splendour, geniuses, before whose creations the other members of the Club, in an invariable ritual, must swoon with appreciation."

We are made to look on in wonder at the gallery of lipsticked youths and male-voiced females admiring "Varnish in June" the masterpiece of Lionel Kein, who counts the syllables in "Swann" and lies prostrate at the feet of his deity. Dick Whittingdon, the Ape Flagellant who exhibits his choice collection of Chinese whips and Bokharan thongs, engages in fierce quarrels over the correct shade of symbolic red to be used in depicting a brick wall. The bald Lesbian Ape with the Radcliffe-Hall collar who paints Biblical scenes struts heavily in her "masculine calvity". The half-intelligent Julius Ratner discusses the problem of his artistic soul with his charlady and then goes off to his book store where he sells "naughty" books to prurient patrons. And then there is Lord Osmund Finnian Shaw "who combined with the traditional Irish madness every correct minor mania of the post-ninety aestheticism of the Chelsea English." The book swarms, somewhat to the reader's boredom, with an innumerable host of minor apes of all sexes and sizes dancing each in his peculiar manner to the tune of the Bloomsbury symphony.

Truly a magnificent collection that of the Primates of the Lord and at times even brilliantly depicted. But Mr. Lewis suffers obviously from one simian fault, circumlocution. The most effective satires are those written most simply. Prolixity is not suited to the pungent pen. It is also a matter of some curiosity to not the change in the critical opinions of the author. In "Time and Western Man" Lewis inveighed fiercely against the time-and-child cult of recent literature and the methods of the Joyceans. In the present book these despised methods are themselves applied by the author, so much so that some pages read like extracts from an imitation of Ulysses.

It would have been the magnificent satire Yeats and Aldington think it to be if Lewis had blue-pencilled the detailed and boring pseudo-scientific probing which mars many brilliantly witty word pictures.

Despite these shortcomings the book remains a splendid burlesque of the pseudo-intelligentia who live on the outskirts of art clinging to the skirts of the muses with the pertinacity of the feebleminded.

A Humanistic View Of A Liberal Education

"A LIBERAL EDUCATION IN A MODERN WORLD": The Burwash Lectures delivered at Victoria University, Toronto, 1932, by R. C. Wallace. The Macmillan Company of Canada. $1.25.

(E.P.R.)

"To be liberally educated is to understand ourselves and our universe. The programme is too large for achievement: but the viewpoint is fundamental." This is the standard which President Wallace sets up in reviewing this question which, in the form of utilitarian versus liberal education, he admits is as old as Aristotle. In the first of the three lectures the historical background is recapitulated, and we are reminded of the epic controversies between the Edinburgh Reviewers and the Fellows of Oriel College at the beginning of the nineteenth century, and between T. H. Huxley and Cardinal Newman in later years. In discussing university curricula of the past, an indication is given of how "theology, law, and medicine had been admitted from the earliest days of universities, but applied science, agriculture, the professional training of teachers, business administration, have been grudgingly admitted, if admitted at all."

The second lecture surveys modern developments in higher education, taking its general examples largely from Canadian university practices and particular examples from certain outstanding institutions in Great Britain and the United States. In setting forth a criterion to aid in judging all vocational fields of university education, Dr. Wallace reminds us that "the university is not concerned with technique.....It is concerned primarily with fundamental principles. If there are no such principles, vocational training has no place in universities.....There is need today to apply the criterion to the older professions as well as to the new vocations which ask for admission."

Waxing more philosophical and more general, the concluding lecture estimates the whole field of adult education, without, as within, the university, and finds that "the easy aids to superficial education which modern inventions have provided have not yet contributed much to the deeper mental culture;" but "both in the sound film and in the radio the possibilities from the educational standpoint have now been grasped." In order to make the most of, and place in their true perspective, the two great educational traditions, the classical and the scientific trainings, it is shown that "there must be greater emphasis on the human and social sciences..... We must give time for human values to catch up on our material progress." And finally, "the modern educationist must achieve unity out of the diversity of modern culture."

R. C. Wallace has been guiding the University of Alberta since Dr. H. M. Tory was called to Ottawa three or four years ago to head the National Research Council. Dr. Wallace is a geologist and geology teacher, who admirably illustrates his own contention in these lectures that, while a man must master his own art or vocation to his utmost, yet to lay claim to a liberal education he must have a much wider humanistic understanding of his world.

Marginalia

Among the recent editions of the Modern Library series there are to be found: William Faulkner's "Sanctuary"; Hardy's "Tess of the d'Urbervilles" and Plutarch's Lives in the Dryden translation.

Isaac Don Levine whose study of the Russian revolution won great critical acclaim has written the story of the Five Year Plan against the background of the pride of the Soviet Union. The book is published by Robert M. McBride & Co., New York.

ATHLETIC PUBLICITY

A few days ago Sir Arthur Currie, Principal of McGill University, in a letter to the McGill Daily stated that McGill does not need athletic prowess for advertising purposes. We are not cognizant of what occasioned this remark, but we are slightly at variance with Sir Arthur's Views.

Sir Arthur said, in part, "Competitive athletics have an educational value. They teach men how to win and how to lose. They should develop manliness and character. But I disassociate myself most strongly from any idea that we need athletics at McGill for advertising purposes. I have travelled widely and have heard McGill's fame proclaimed in many lands, but never once was the prowess of her athletics mentioned. McGill's well-earned reputation rests on a more permanent foundation—one of solid educational achievement."

With this statement we are not quite in sympathy. Few will contest the contention that athletic competition brings a university into a prominence with the outside world that it would otherwise be unlikely able to attain, irregardless of its scholastic reputation. McGill University is held in high esteem by educationalists all over the world and compares most favorably with the better class of universities, but we maintain, nevertheless, that the publicity gained by her representatives in the field of athletic endeavour is not to be ignored. The reputation for sportmanship of McGill's athletes has probably attracted as many students to that institution of learning as her reputation as an educational centre.

Oxford University is one of the best known universities in the world, but at the risk of being labelled morous we must admit that the word "Oxford" immediately suggests to our mind the famous annual boat-races with Cambridge, followed by the thought that that is where Rhodes scholars are sent. Oxford's athletic achievements have certainly gained for her a plentitude of beneficial advertising. To bring the topic a little nearer home we might point out that the great rugby machines of 1922, 1923 and 1924 have done as much to acquaint this continent of the existence of Queen's University as has her high educational standards. This type of advertising can be overdone, as in the case of Notre Dame, but then we are not advocating extremes for any point of view.

No, Sir Arthur, we think that you are belittling the value of competitive athletics when you say that McGill's reputation rests on solid educational achievements. It is not suggested for a moment that the latter be sacrificed to the former, but your great hockey and football teams have brought McGill into an enviable lime-light that would be appreciated more if it were suddenly withdrawn or withheld. In any case the advertising derived from athletic prowess is more to be desired than the appelation of "love-nest" in the newspapers.

From Agent's Advances

PALACE

The incomparable Maurice Chevalier the joy-maker supreme, prescribes Love and Laughter for all your troubles in his newest, snappiest, picture—"One Hour With You" at Palace Theatre starting tomorrow, Friday.

As a fashionable doctor whose women patients find his prescriptions easy to take, Chevalier has a role full off opportunities for his special brand of foolery. The doctor is actually in love with his wife, Colette (played by Jeanette MacDonald) and though duty requires him to call on other ladies, hold their hands, that, is feel their pulses, and listen to excited fluttering of their hearts, he struggles manfully to be true to Colette. The picture is directed by Ernst Lubitsch.

LOEW'S

Joe E. Brown appears as assistant fire chief and local baseball hero in "Fireman, Save My Child". In order to secure enough money to finance a fire extinguisher which he has invented, Brown as "Smoky Joe" Grant, accepts an offer to pitch in the major league for the St. Louis Cardinals. His adventures in the city do not, however, prevent him from forgetting all about the baseball game at a crucial moment when he hears the sirens of the fire trucks.

The vaudeville programme is the most studendous and spectacular ever offered in Montreal for the entire stage will be devoted to Fred Bradna's "Big Tent Circus". The featured acts in "The Circus" are Maybelle's Elephants; Mickey King, hailed as the successor of the late Lillian Lietzel; Captain Tiebor's "Seals"; Bell Trio, comedy acrobats; Orrin Davenport's "Performing horses"; Mde Bradna, world famous equestrienne and De Kos 10 comical clowns.

CAPITOL

Miriam Hopkins in "Dancers in the Dark" with Jack Oakie and Frederic March, and Kay Francis in "Strangers in Love" are the two Holiday pictures at Capitol starting Friday.

"Dancers in the Dark" is a swift, enteraining story. It has a lot of good laughs, put over by those comedy experts, Jack Oakie and Eugene Pallette. It has an occasional bit of soft seductive dance music, and the savage syncopation of the over-popular "St. Louis Blues" to sharpen the drama of the climax. Miriam Hopkins gives an excellent portrayal as the dance-hall hostess.

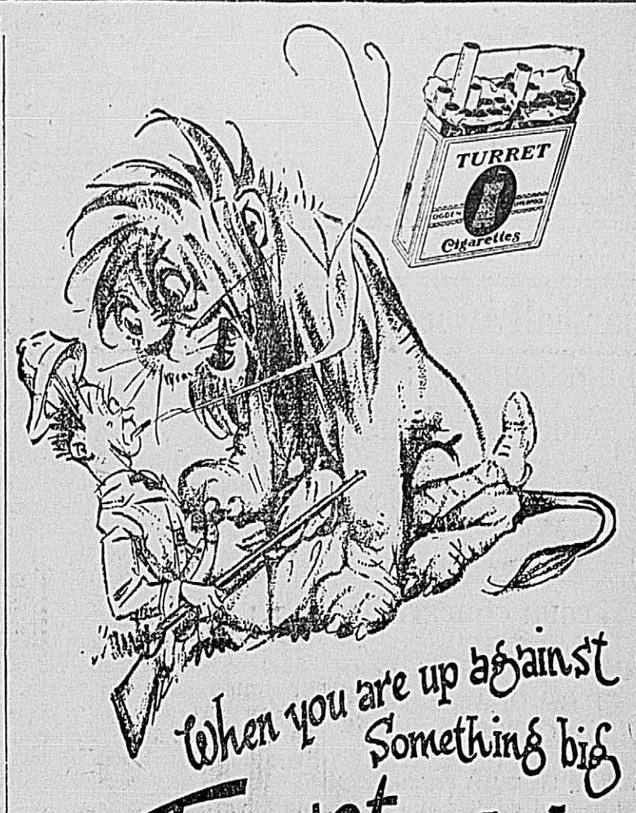

The second feature Frederic March and Kay Francis in "Strangers in Love" is a story that has all the fundamentals of proven entertainment, thrills, flavored with lilting romance,

Engineering Frosh Capture Interclass Puck Championship

Defeat Lawyers, Last Year's Titleholders By 1-0 Score

LEGALISTS FIGHT HARD

ENGINEER'S speedy six copped the interclass hockey title by a 1-0 victory over the lawyers in the final game of the season at the Forum on Tuesday afternoon. It was the superior speed of the plumbers that enabled them to take the laurels from the last year's champs. Morgan got the winning tally for his team in a scramble in front of Mitchell's cage. The legalists protested the tally loud and long but the engineers bested them in the dispute and the score was allowed. The Engineers succeeded in staving off the lawyers vain attempt to equalize. The lawyers left the ice vowing that they would be back again next year to regain their lost laurels.

Mace, brilliant Engineering goalie, added another shut-out to his already long list. His goal tending has been one of the main reasons for the plumbers' success this year. The plumbers' front line has speed to burn and the large Forum ice gave them a great chance to show their stuff. Gordie Ogilvie, inspired by his victory in the elections, gave a great display. He was well supported on the forward line by Grisdale, Christie, Morgan and MacGibbon.

Lawyers Weaken.

The plumbers were well stocked with defence players. Costello, Law, McMartin and Taylor formed a stone-wall in front of Mace. They played a hard checking game and took considerable steam out of the opposing forwards. The only real scoring chance the Lawyers had was when both Taylor and McMartin were chased for over-zealous application of the body around the blue line. But Christie saved the day by some brilliant back-checking.

Plumbers Defence Good.

Mitchell was the star performer for the lawyers. Time and again he saved what looked like sure goals for the plumbers. Montgomery played his usually strong game on the defence, but Mullaly was not himself for the greater part of the game due to a terrific crash into the boards in the first period. The lawyers were handicapped by a lack of alternates and Mullaly despite his injury was forced to play the entire game.

The front line played well in the first period but the pace told on their condition and at the end of the game they were dead on their feet. Urquhart took the only penalty of the lawyers when he retaliated after he had received one of Taylor's crushing body checks. Carlisle and Morgan got through alone on Mace but the goalie had the "Indian sign" on them each time.

The plumbers had the better of the afternoon's play and it was only Mitchell's exceptional good goaling prevented them from running up a much larger score. Parent and Robertson, managers for Engineering and Law respectively, deserve mention for the handling of their teams all through the year. After all a good deal of credit is due to them and the players themselves are the first to say so.

BIRDS AND BADMINTON

As this is the last Daily of the year all players in the tournament are reminded to consult the list in the tuck-shop for the games they have to play. Play must have reached the finals by Monday of next week and any players who have not got off their matches by that time will be regarded as having defaulted.

Entrants are also reminded that fees are payable at the tuck-shop. Anyone who entered his name for the competition is liable for fees and it is hoped that to avoid the bother of collection the delinquent ones will pay up at once.

Incidentally there are still several men who made use of the club's facilities this winter who have not paid the required fee of three dollars. An early settlement eta g, eta eta eta et early remittment to any of the club executive would be appreciated.

AN ATHLETIC AUDIT

Another sports year has passed, and McGill has come through it with flying colours. Once again red athletes head the Canadian Intercollegiate Union with championships won, holding eight titles to six for Varsity, and outside of the Intercollegiate they have also stood out with the best. The hockey team trimmed the two strongest competitors for the World's Amateur Hockey Championship at Lake Placid, while the basketball team are right in the running for a Senior Dominion title.

But apart from the wins, and the good losses, McGill can be proud of the men who have carried the colours into the arena. There has not been one occasion in the past year when McGill athletes have been the cause of any disruption, or legitimate bad feeling, while they themselves have taken the bad breaks with the good ones, and taken them in the same good spirit. It has been a pleasure to stand behind McGill teams in the past year, for win or lose they have given grand displays. Few universities have the reputation for good sportsmanship that McGill has, and it is an asset that should always be preserved.

SECOND TO NONE

It should not be out of place to be partisan at this time, and we would like to wish the basketball squad the best of luck in their quest for the Dominion Championship. It is a goal that they have had in mind for some time, and they have trained and worked faithfully to battle along its trail. They have a reputation on the floor second to none in the Dominion, and are of the calibre to stand a great chance of attaining the laurels they are fighting for. The second game with the Fusiliers tomorrow may be the hardest test of all. So best of luck basketball team; may you have the success you deserve!

BEST OF LUCK

CINEMA DE PARIS

After five solid weeks at the Gaumont-Palace in Paris, the largest cinema in the world, the comedy picture "La Bande a Bouboule" comes to Montreal, opening at the Cinema de Paris Saturday. "La Bande a Bouboule"—Bouboule and his gang concerns Bouboule, the king of sharp fellows, who earns his living as a taxi driver and is a racing fan. Together with a few friends, he is proprietor of a horse, Titine, which is sent for the grand steeplechase at Cannes. While paying a visit to Titine, the unfortunate Bouboule is robbed of his taxi. A young girl has eloped in it with her timid lover and, as there is no trace of the young couple, the police believes a crime has been committed, and Bouboule is involved in a series of tragico-comical adventures. A full program of short subjects including a farcical comedy "Chou-Pomme", animated cartoons etc., will also be seen.

Starting Saturday its new policy of showing French-made pictures, the Imperial Theatre will present "Il Est Charmant" (He Is Charming), a Paramount operetta produced in Saint-Maurice, near Paris. Henri Garat, the famous comedian Dranem and Baron, fils, are starred. With its songs, dances and colorful costumes, the picture is said to offer splendid entertainment.

BARON BYNG CHORAL SOCIETY

The annual concert of the Baron Byng Choral Society will be held on Tuesday evening, April 12, at 8:30, in Victoria Hall, Westmount. This choral society of 45 voices is made up of graduates of the Baron Byng High School and is conducted by D. M. Herbert, assistant superintendent of music of the Montreal schools.

At this concert the Choral Society will be assisted by the Delta Chi Male Choir, and Miss Minna Weinstein pianist. The program will be made up of songs for male and female voices, as well as numbers for mixed voices, written by composers ranging from Pinsuti to Healy Willan, and Bantock to A. E. Whitehead. Tickets are selling for 55 and 75 cents, and may be obtained by calling BElair 1408.

Fifteen Nominated To Fill Four Offices

Fifteen nominations for four officers attest to the interest displayed by Commerce students in their undergraduate society elections. Four candidates are in the field for the presidency, five for vice-president, two for secretary and four for treasurer. The elections will be held Wednesday, March 30th.

The following men have been nominated for president, Bill Corby, Stuart Ebbitt, Gordon Fulcher and Richard Webster; for vice-president, Malcolm Blakely, Dudley Butterfield, James Davison, V. W. Estano and G. A. McVey; for secretary, Harry Griffiths, and Robert L. Stevenson; for treasurer, Thyman Kleiman, Roland Lamb, Walter Markham and Bill Styles.

lor of the German Consulate in Montreal was also among the speakers.

Following the dinner, Mrs. Ewing sang several selections from Goethe-lieder. "Kennst du das Land" to the music of Schubert, and "das Vielchen" were among her selections.

The Teutonia Club choir also gained the applause of the company with three selections. "Es war ein Konig if Thule" was especially well sung.

The decoration and lighting were considered excellent. The small lampions on all the tables were capped with quaint painted shades with a silhouette of Goethe on each one. On the raised stage was a life-size portrait of the poet. Various plant effects and a number of box-plants, such as were common to the countryside round about Goethe's birthplace were displayed in rare tasts.

Crooning Radio Tenors Labelled "Emasculated"

(By Exchange Service)

All male crooners are emasculated, believes Dean Harold L. Butler of Syracuse University. He thinks that low-voiced radio warblers like Vallee, Columbo and Crosby are "emasculated, effeminate whiners, whose efforts cannot be labelled singing."

Dean Butler is less bitter about the female crooners because "at least they sound something the way members of that sex sing." But he believes that the male of the species neither sings in key nor utilizes the potentialities which the human vocal mechanism affords.

He does not consider jazz as any part of modern music. "The real singing of today differs greatly from that of years ago," he adds. "Formerly the emphasis was upon technique and the human voice was regarded as an instrument rather than an organ of expression. But now technique in itself is no longer stressed and as a result singing has become richer in feeling and expressiveness."

forces of evil are so great that their civilization must fall.

Third among the candidates came H. E. Parsons, who showed that the U.S. is in no danger of outside forces. There is corruption in the state but which can be removed by change without the complete doom of America. The forces are still present which can make the change possible.

Destruction Inevitable

Melbourne Doig, the last speaker of the evening, defined doom as meaning sending to misfortune or destruction. All the world is doomed to misfortune anyway. As far as destruction is concerned, history tells that the Greek and Roman civilizations have been effaced completely, the American civilization is by no means the last and will disappear anyway. As America can only call itself a century old at most it cannot boast of a civilization.

At this point the judges left the room while the house was opened to general discussion. At the return of the judges, Brooke Claxton, read their pronouncement, giving the cup to Arthur Marshall.

Spanish Has Both Music And Power

dramatic productions and of mysticism, in which St. John of the Cross plays a leading part.

Deplores False Ideas

The nineteenth century was marked by the "Revival of the Impetuous Romantics," while at the present day, fiction predominates. Although Spanish literature has not a wide effect on that of other European nations, it has not saved Spaniards from the dissemination of many false notions concerning them and their country. In this regard, French writers have been especially guilty, stated the speaker, and should be condemned for the spread of the "Black Legend."

Spanish art is also rich in wealth, claimed Professor Peers. The architecture is noted for its many traces of Moorish edifices. In painting, Italian influence predominates, "never replacing the Spanish genius but intermingling with it."

History in the Making

The history of Spain can best be described, according to Professor Peers, by the one adjective "thrilling". "Spanish history is being made at the present day." The present crisis makes a turning point and whether Spain rises to its heights of old, "not by imperial aspirations" but by emphasis on culture remains to be seen.

The best method for understanding Spain, however, is to visit it. The speaker described the country with its bare undulating plains, barren lands, industrial cities, blue lakes, sunshine and villas, apple orchards, typical English scenes, lone hills and snow plateaus—"All this is Spain." The language is divided into five dialects, and consequently, "Spain is a land of eternal contrasts and eternal surprise, which impels one to study it."

ilton, Isadore Hyams, Harry Mersereau, Gwen Nicholson, Connie Routtenberg, Arthur Styles, Lee Hollingsworth. Honourable mention for meritorious service was given to: Howard Adelstein, Donald Byers, Grant Carlyle, Frank Gorman, Molly Nebach, Elma Perrigard, Ruth Rosenberg, Eleanor Reid, Margaret Patterson, Clarence Shepard, Bill Styles.

Toasts Numerous

Among the distinguished guests at the banquet was H. C. Beatty of the Montreal Board of Trade, president of McGill Daily in the year preceding the Great War. Mr. Beatty proposed a toast to the Daily to which Adam Marshall replied. The Old Boys of the staff were toasted by Robert Picard, replies being made by Leo Edel, George Brown and Ted Harris, former members of the Managing Board, who spoke for all the Old Boys present.

Nat Levitsky proposed a toast to the Printers to which Harold Arthur of the Herald staff responded. The graduating members of the Daily were wished future happiness, etc., by John Rowat, each in turn making a brief reply; included in the number were Bob Bowman and Ewart Reid. The Daily ceases publication today, to appear once more only before the end of the college year.

Red & White Revue Notes

SALE OF COSTUMES

Once a year the Revue offers for sale at very low prices the costumes specially designed and made for its performances. This is an excellent opportunity to purchase fancy dress clothes cheaply.

The Revue Office in the Union Basement will be open between two and five today for this purpose. Anyone who cannot come at this time, however, may arrange an appointment by telephoning Miss Beatrice Harvey, FI. 8954.

SALE OF MUSIC

In response to requests for music from the 1932 show the Producer wishes to announce that this can be supplied in blueprint form (white notes on a blue background) at four cents a sheet or in ozalid print form (blue lines on a white background, as used in the pit) at five cents a sheet. Orchestrations for the following numbers only are available in this shape: Spring Mania, Lady Fashion, Peter Pan, Salome, Foolish You, Nuances (waltz), Reverie, and Studying. Most of the music from the 1931 show may also be obtained. The orchestrations run to about twenty sheets apiece, but they vary, of course, with the length of the number.

Further information may be obtained and orders may be left by telephoning Bruce Ross at FI. 0678.

EXECUTIVE KEYS

All members of the Executive Committee who received keys to the Office are asked to return them as soon as possible to Mr. Fletcher.

Choral & Operatic — Society —

The ANNUAL MEETING of the Choral and Operatic Society will be held in the Union Ballroom NEXT THURSDAY, March 31st. As this is the last issue of the Daily this year, no further notice of the meeting can be given and all members of the Society are requested to keep the date in mind. The business to be transacted includes the election of officers for the coming year and certain other matters of importance.

The meeting will commence at eight o'clock sharp and it is hoped that business will be concluded as quickly as possible, for the evening will be concluded by the last social event of the year for the Society, a dance to be held in the Ballroom. Refreshments will be served, and all members of the society will be expected to contribute to the catering department. The ladies will be communicated with in order that they may know what they are required to bring, while each man who attends the dance will be called upon to contribute a small sum, which will probably amount to less than fifty cents a man.
